500 BOMBERS DROP LOAD ON DUESSELDORF

Second Great Attack On Nazis In Two Nights Is Recorded

27 RAF PLANES ARE REPORTED LOST

Explosives Are Dropped On Other Targets In Germany

(By Associated Press)
LONDON, May 26.—An armada of 500 heavy bombers, probably as strong as the force which unloaded more than 2,000 tons of explosives on Dortmund Sunday night, blasted Duesseeldorf last night in a continuing offensive apparently aimed at obliterating Germany's arms centers one by one.

Observers estimated that perhaps 500 bombers—at least three-quarters of them giant four-motored craft capable of carrying a tremendous weight of high explosives—participated in the assault.

Twenty-seven bombers were lost in the attack, said the announcement, which reported the assault was carried out "in very great strength." Several other targets in Germany also were reported bombed, though Duesseeldorf, in the heart of the battered Ruhr, was the main objective.

It was the second great attack on Germany in three nights, and gave force to the threat emanating from the Churchill-Roosevelt conference that Adolf Hitler's war power was to be destroyed at its roots.

Duesseeldorf is situated on the Rhine 24 miles northwest of Cologne and 50 miles southwest of Dortmund, which was the target of Sunday's record-smashing raid.

It is Germany's third largest inland port and has iron and steel works comparable to the great Krupp organization.

A previous raid on Duesseeldorf last Dec. 2 was said to have left 190,000 homeless.

The city had a pre-war population of 429,000. Last month Sir Archibald Sinclair, British air minister, told the house of commons that 380 acres of the city had been laid in ruins.

Mitchell medium bombers were out during daylight yesterday with an effort of Spitfires and again battered the off-bombed Nazi airfield at Abbeville behind the French coast fighter squadrons, in supporting sweeps, strafed other objectives in northern France. Two bombers and two fighters were reported lost.

Two stars at the British coast cost the enemy eight aircraft during the day.

Nazis Hit Coast Towns

Four were brought down as the Germans struck at two southeast coast towns in mid-afternoon with a force of some 25 planes, the largest concentration of enemy daylight raiders in some time.

The Nazi attackers dropped a number of bombs and then turned their guns on buildings in the towns. In one town, several homes

Post-War Planners To Meet Thursday

More Than 100 Expected At Joint Session of Rotary, Kiwanis and Lions Clubs

The post-war planning dinner-meeting, sponsored by Rotary, Kiwanis and Lions clubs, will attract more than 100 at 6:30 p. m. Thursday in the Memorial building, Chairman J. B. Martin reported today.

That many reservations have been made for the dinner, at which the principal address will be delivered by William S. Miller, advertising manager of the General Fireproofing Co. of Youngstown.

Serving on the committee with Martin, who represents the Rotarians, are Joe M. Kelley of the Kiwanis club and Carl Auman of the Lions.

During the after dinner program vocal solos will be given by J. J. Miller, member of the Troubadour quartet of Ravenna. His accompanist will be Mrs. Henderson, wife of the pastor of the Ravenna Methodist church.

Floyd W. McKee, president of the Rotary club, who proposed that the civic clubs join in sponsoring a movement for setting up a planning commission to consider the employment problem of soldiers and civilians after the war, will present his plans and name a planning committee to get the project started. It is his idea that this commission should work with city officials in setting up a program.

Miller's subject will be "Now and Tomorrow." The Youngstown man has been engaged in advertising, sales education and public relations work for more than 20 years. During most of that time he has been lecturing all over the country before civic, business and industrial groups.

Some months ago Miller interested himself in post-war planning and in his work along that line he developed what he considers some rather amazing facts. These facts he will present in his talk before the Salem civic clubs Thursday evening.

ALLIED BOMBINGS TOP GERMANS' BEST

They'll Be More Effective In Blasting Hitler Out Of War

By DEWITT MacKENZIE

If Hitler couldn't knock England out by bombing, what chance have the Allies of blasting Germany into submission now?

That very reasonable question has been put to me, and this looks like an appropriate time to answer it in view of the further devastating raids on German and Italian territories.

Messrs. Hitler and Mussolini couldn't have slept well last night. Actually, of course, nobody in authority has claimed that Hitler could be beaten by air alone, although British Premier Churchill says it's an "experiment well worth trying, so long as other measures aren't excluded"—with accent on that last clause. There has been no indication the Allies intend to wait for air power to turn the trick.

Invasion Expected

On the contrary, it's reasonable to expect them to start invasions of the continent as soon as the raids have reduced Axis strength so armies can be landed without being mowed down.

But to return to our muttons, Hitler's bombing of England and the Allied bombing of Germany involve different circumstances. Take, for example, the distribution of war industries.

Britain's plants were largely decentralized—scattered all over the country. This was by deliberate plan, calculated to meet just such an emergency as arose. The Nazi bombers did terrific damage here and there, but knocking out one manufacturing city or half a dozen couldn't disrupt the country's production.

Many of Germany's essential industries, however, are centralized because of circumstances over which Hitler has had no control. His greatest armament works are concentrated in the Ruhr, because both iron and coal are there. He can't get away from that district, and make a prime target for the Anglo-American bombers based in Britain.

Closing down of the Ruhr manufacturing zone would be a major catastrophe which the "all highest" could scarcely survive.

Then, too, the fuhrer banked too

PAY INCREASE FOR RAILROAD MEN GRANTED

General Boost of 8 Cents An Hour To Benefit Million Workers

ACTION TAKEN BY EMERGENCY BOARD

Rates Within Stabilization Program, Board Certifies

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, May 26.—An emergency board of the national railway labor panel recommended today a general increase of 8 cents an hour for more than a million of the nation's railroad employees.

The 15 so-called non-operating unions involved had asked an increase of 20 cents an hour with a minimum wage of 70 cents an hour, and the union shop. The board declined to recommend these proposals.

Within Program

The recommendations are not based on the Little Steel formula of the War Labor board, but the emergency board said "we certify" that the increases are within the national stabilization program.

The increases, said the report, are "the minimum, non-inflationary adjustments necessary to correct gross inequities and to aid in the effective prosecution of the war."

The WLB, in addition to its Little Steel formula, may justify further increases under the same language.

The emergency board's report is not subject to action by the War Labor board. Only stabilization Director James F. Byrnes, acting for the President, may modify it.

An executive order provides that unless the stabilization director otherwise directs, the recommendations shall become effective 30 days after they are filed with the President.

The report estimated the increases would add about $204,000,000 to the carriers' annual payrolls and added:

"It is the considered judgment of the board that the recommended wage increases do not, under prevailing circumstances, provide a basis for increases in railroad rates or for resistance to justifiable reductions in such rates."

The increases would be retroactive to Feb. 1. All retroactive payments would be made in war bonds.

73 Classes Affected

The recommendations affect 73 classes of employees, such as the shop crafts, clerks, and maintenance workers. Their average earnings as of last October were 73.8 cents an hour, the board said.

About half of them received less than 70 cents an hour.

Not affected are the switchmen and the four other brotherhoods who actually operate the trains. They have filed an independent demand for a 30 per cent increase. Hearings in that dispute will begin before another emergency board in New York on June 7.

The national railroad labor panel occupies about the same relationship to railway labor disputes as the War Labor board does to all other labor disputes.

TEACHERS OFFER P. T. A. SUPPORT

Say Movement Can Help Students, Teachers and Parents

The movement to organize a Parent-Teacher association in Salem has the support of the Salem Teachers association.

"We shall be glad to cooperate with you in making the school of Salem play the vital part they should play in the education of the children of Salem," H. C. Lehman, president of the teachers' group, organized about a year ago, has notified Mrs. Anthony Woina, who served as chairman of the P.-T.-A. meeting a week ago.

Lehman's letter to Mrs. Woina follows:

"The executive committee of the Salem Teachers association at a meeting Wednesday, May 19, acting as spokesmen for Salem teachers decided to take this method of assuring you the support of the teachers in any project which is for the benefit of our schools."

"We want you to know that you can count on our support of the parent-teacher movement if the parents of Salem feel it wise to effect such an organization."

"We feel that this movement can be of real value to students, teachers and parents."

The American Legion auxiliary will be assisted in its street sales of the lapel decorations by Sons of the Legion and Junior auxiliary.

SOLONS PUSH TAX PROGRAM

Race Against Clock to Put Income Plan In Effect By July 1

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, May 26.—House and senate conferees who finally struggled to a compromise on pay-as-you-go income tax collection raced against the legislative clock today to put it into effect by July 1, only five weeks away.

Prospects look good for speedy senate and house approval, leaders among the conference group declared.

Designed to put the nation's 44,000,000 taxpayers on a current basis without the compulsion of paying two year's taxes in one, here is what the bill would do:

Cancel a whole year's income tax liability for persons owing the government $50 tax or less.

Cancel 75 per cent of a year's liability for all others, with the remainder to be paid half in 1944 and half in 1945.

Impose a 20 per cent withholding levy against the taxable portion of wages and salaries, to be applied against income and victory tax liability.

Require quarterly payments of the current year's tax by persons with income from sources other than wages or salaries, and from persons in upper salary brackets.

Change the Doughton (D-N-C) of the house ways and means committee, who headed the house conference delegation, said he hoped the bill would be accepted by both houses this week and approved by the President.

Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich.), ranking Republican member of the finance committee, told a reporter he did not think there would be any serious controversy about the measure now that the conferees have ended a five day deadlock.

"It is perfectly obvious that it is a compromise available," he said, "and it is equally obvious that there must be a bill passed."

Whether the legislation would eliminate any necessity for higher income tax rates this year remained to be determined. President Roosevelt has asked for an additional $16,000,000,000 in taxes and savings.

Congressional ratification of the conference committee's work would end four months of bitter legislative wrangling in which the Ruml skip-be-full-year-for-everybody plan was endorsed formally by the senate and rejected three times in the house, once by only four votes.

Doughton estimated the compromise plan would wipe out some $6,000,000,000 of obligations to the treasury—an estimated 64 or 65 per cent of the tax due on 1942 income.

Only the lesser of the 1942 or 1943 income tax obligations would be subject to full or partial abatement. That is to say, if a man's taxable income for 1942 were larger than his income this year, the abatement provisions would apply to 1943. In addition, a special provision was inserted to apply to "windfall" cases where income increased abnormally.

To avoid inequities at levels just

Edsel B. Ford Dies After Long Illness

49-Year-Old President of Famed Motor Company Succumbs Early Today at His Home

(By Associated Press)
DETROIT, May 26.—Edsel Bryant Ford, president of the Ford Motor company, died at 1:30 a. m. today.

Death came to the 49-year-old president of the world's greatest family-owned manufacturing enterprise at his home in suburban Grosse Pointe Shores, after an illness of many months standing that became critical 10 days ago. With him at his bedside were his wife, the former Eleanor Lowthian Clay, and three of their four children.

His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Ford, were not present, but hurried to the home immediately upon being advised of their son's death, according to a member of the household.

A statement issued by a member of the Henry Ford hospital staff said "death was due to a condition which developed from a former stomach malady for which an operation was performed 16 months ago. Undulant fever was also present."

Edsel Ford, only son of the founder of the Ford company that grew from an initial paid-in investment of $28,000 to a world-wide organization for which Henry Ford once was reported to have refused $2,000,000,000, had been ill for a long time, but insisted upon "carrying on."

NOT THE PROPER PLACE

Board of education members do not want Marion A. Cox associating with High school students and they think he should not be permitted at the school building. In directing their appeal to the superintendent, these board members were echoing the expressed convictions of hundreds of Salem people.

Marion Cox refused to respond to the call of his draft board for induction into the army and then openly defied that board, which was tantamount to defying his government in time of war. He was indicted by a federal grand jury and sentenced to serve four years in prison. Final disposition of the case rests with Federal Judge Freed of Cleveland, but regardless of his decision, Marion Cox stands convicted.

He is a bad influence in time of war, especially when he mingles with High school students. His presence at the Freshman-Sophomore party last Friday night was especially objectionable. School authorities shouldn't hesitate another minute to act in this case. His wife, a High school teacher, didn't elevate her position in the community by taking him with her to that party. Her superiors should have shown him the nearest exit.

GIVE BOWLERS A CHANCE

Opening of the new bowling center in the Althouse building, with 14 new alleys, brought out a steady flow of men and women bowlers Saturday night. Many of them were beginners who had been looking forward to this opportunity for a long time. It is the answer to a need felt in Salem for several years—a bowling center large enough to accommodate all who seek this healthful exercise. With the destruction by fire of the Grate alleys, the need was greater than ever, as only four alleys are in operation at the Masonic temple.

Now that these alleys have been provided, it seems a proper time for city council to bring one of its old ordinances up to date. That ordinance, in effect many years ago when pool rooms were part of bowling establishments, prevents bowling on Sundays. It was aimed at pool playing, of course, but today bowling alleys offer only bowling as a recreation. There are no side attractions, no gambling, no beer. In other words, the atmosphere is of the best.

Why not, therefore, take bowling out of the pool room ordinance and permit it on Sunday? We have our roller skating rink operating on Sundays, baseball and football are permitted on that day, and many other forms of amusement and exercise are not restricted. Bowlers in Salem have been asking for the right to engage in their clean sport on Sunday for a long time. Afternoon and evening hours would not interfere with church services. What good reason is there for denying the bowlers their request?

WAR'S NATURAL HAZARD

Floods in the Mississippi basin, doing heavy damage to farm land and towns, are the result of the persistent rains that have slowed up planting to a dangerous extent in the same area.

Everything depends now on what kind of a summer and fall follow what must be set down as a spring shaded from unfavorable to disastrous. A bad summer and an early frost, or unusual rainfall in the fall would be calamitous.

War's natural hazard is weather, the one factor men never can hope to control. Weather affects not only crops; it determines the beginning and the end of campaigns. It blows armadas off their courses. It traps Napoleon's army retreating from Moscow and shrouds the English channel in fog. But chiefly down through the years it has influenced the availability of food, to the extent that no nation, however strong otherwise, can be called fully prepared for a maximum war effort unless it has stored sufficient food in advance to be reasonably secure against at least one bad growing season.

It is no secret that the United States counted on more food available from the harvest of 1943 than can be realized under the hazard of unfavorable spring weather. To the extent that the international food conference at White Sulphur Springs may be authorized to consider this new war fact, its deliberations might be as important as the more publicized Washington conference on war strategy.

2,000 TONS ON DORTMUND

Dortmund, the German coal town, river-railway junction and manufacturing center that felt the 2,000-ton fury of British air power Sunday night, has a population of approximately 550,000.

Its inhabitants know far better than the British how heavy the raid on their city was—and the British call it the heaviest of the war. Obviously, when 2,000 tons of anything drop in a defined area the results are going to be terrific, and the same weight of explosives means at least a thousand times as much damage as, say, coal.

But just to get an idea, suppose Dortmund had been bombed with coal. (In the siege of Sevastopol, the Germans dropped scrap iron, incidentally.) A ton of run-of-mine coal dumped out of an airplane at 10,000 feet would be a formidable shower of death and destruction, but there would be none of the lateral force developed by a bomb at the instant of explosion, nor would there be any particular danger from fire. Nevertheless, it probably would be enough to put an ordinary house out of commission, to say nothing of inhabitants who hadn't taken to shelter. Certainly the record raid the other night must have affected 100,000 persons in a most intimate manner, even if most of the bombs hit schools and hospitals, as the Germans sometimes claim. It is easy to imagine, moreover, that as many as 50,000 buildings were destroyed by impact, explosions and fire. The Chicago fire, one of history's best known disasters, made 100,000 persons homeless and destroyed fewer than 18,000 buildings.

COMMENCEMENT—FOR TODAY

There is scarcely a high school or college whose commencement ceremony this year will not be affected directly by the fact of war. Youth is not given its educational passport in wartime as a matter of form, but in the acute realism of youth's immediate importance in the work to be done.

Young men must step immediately into places of responsibility as fighters and technicians. The carefree boys and girls of yesterday are gone. There is work for all of them now, work that they can do better than their elders. The aphorism that youth is the nation's strength ceases to be something out of a commencement speaker's address and becomes a vital fact when the country's strength actually is being tested.

Commencement in 1943 is not in honor of those who have finished certain training that may be useful tomorrow, but to release those who are urgently needed today. Their education never has been more in demand. Even while this year's graduates are getting their diplomas, their places in the classrooms and dormitories are being filled by young men and women in uniform, sent back to school by their government to be prepared more intensively for the work that must be done.

The significance of all this is not being wasted on educators. The tendency of all education to adopt mechanical procedures for lack of need to make all procedures fill some definite purpose is being searched out and overcome. One certain effect of the war will be the overcoming of rigidity in scholastic training. All education, but particularly liberal education, will be revitalized and given a new sense of purpose.

TREATMENT WITH SULFA DRUGS

Better See Physician, Says Clendening

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
FOR ABOUT five years now the medical profession has been in a dither of excitement about the new sulfa drugs which act so remarkably in such infections as pneumonia, meningitis, urinary infections, etc.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

One of the most widely experienced practicing physicians said to me the other day: "Nobody dies any more of pneumonia." And this is almost literally true.

The enthusiasm of the medical profession has communicated itself to the lay public and, as usual with such emotional epidemics, they have gone far beyond the limits that the medical profession prescribed for the use of these remedies and are using them for self-medication for nearly everything.

In some instances, as for ordinary colds and sore throats and running noses, they do more harm than good. In the first place, it is definitely established that although they kill a great many infections, the sulfa drugs do not kill off the virus of the common cold or influenza etc. its course.

Not Useful for Colds

People who take large doses of this for a cold not only do themselves no good, but they really prolong a good deal of discomfort because heavy doses of the drugs are likely to lead to skin rashes, mental and physical depression and other disagreeable symptoms.

A popular treatise on the subject is Behind the Sulfa Drugs: A Short History of Chemotherapy, by Iago Galdston, M.D., with a preface by Perrin H. Long, M.D. (D. Appleton-Century company, New York, 1943.)

In 1908 a German scientist named P. Gelmio was working with a chemical dye, sulfanilamide. He found that it was extremely colorfast, resisted the bleaching effects of washing and sunlight. The colorfastness arose from the firm combination which the dyes containing the sulfonamide element formed with the proteins of wool and silk.

He was interested only on the chemical and industrial aspects of the subject, but some of his fellow workers suggested that it might be useful in the treatment of disease. Later developments.

The new era in this development began in 1932 when Gerhard Domagk, director of the Institute of Experimental Pathology in the I. G. Farbenindustrie at Eberfeld, Germany, using a dye similar to sulfanilamide, which was named prontosil, found that it would protect mice against otherwise fatal doses of pus germs (streptococci). He found also that prontosil was harmless to the mice.

French chemists took the dye, prontosil, which is a colloid (colloid is like the white of egg) and developed a crystalline substance from it, to which they gave the name sulfanilamide. About 1936 this drug was made available for use in clinics all over the world.

It was soon found that the most exaggerated statements of the discoverers were far short of the really powerful curative action of these substances in human beings in the presence of otherwise fatal infections.

Following is a list of diseases, not completely inclusive, in which the sulfonamides are proving invaluable and frequently life-saving.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour out about 2 pints of bile juice into your bowels every day. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food may not digest. It may just decay in the bowels. Then gas builds up your stomach. You get constipated. You feel sour, sunk and the world looks puny.

It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these 2 pints of bile flowing freely to make you feel "up and up." Get a package today. Take as directed. Effective in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. 10¢ and 25¢.

You can't go to work on tires alone!

Save your tires, sure—but SAVE YOUR WHOLE CAR AS WELL!

No matter how carefully you nurse your tires along, they won't do you a bit of good if you neglect the car they're mounted on.

Not that we're trying to minimize the importance of proper tire care. We ourselves offer as complete a tire-servicing program as you could find anywhere—including not only the usual inflation and inspection services, but also wheel alignment, wheel balancing and scientific brake equalizing.

No, we don't want to talk down the importance of your tires—we want to talk up the importance of your whole automobile. New tires are being manufactured even during the war—a certain number at least. But no new cars are being built at all. That means your present car must last. And that means you need a program of complete, all-round maintenance service. Not just tire inspection. Not just lubrication. But these things plus all the other vital check-ups, adjustments, replacements and repairs that are so necessary to counteract the possible "ill effects" of today's low speeds and limited driving.

We offer just such a complete, up-to-date program. Oldsmobile engineers have developed a "wartime service package" that will meet your every need. See us about it today.

RUBBER IS VITAL BUT—

DON'T NEGLECT OTHER VITAL PARTS LIKE THESE!

Brakes not equalized wear out fast. Worn linings result in scored drums.

Valves improperly adjusted are subject to burning out and must be replaced.

Distributor points, made of vital tungsten steel, must be kept adjusted.

Pistons and piston rings will last longer if safeguarded by proper lubrication.

DEATH GOES NATIVE

By MAX LONG

CHAPTER THIRTY-TWO
Pright was in her face again and the doctor would have interfered. But Komako held him back while he asked:

"You want we should tell your papa and mama?" she said. "I haven't any family," she said, still looking distressfully about her. "Neither has Peter—we have only each other, really." Tears welled up in her eyes again.

By this time I knew she was not Polly Morgan, but the resemblance of her memory held me spellbound. Mrs. Latham pushed forward putting herself between the girl and Komako.

"You know me, my dear, don't you?" she said in her cheerful, homey, decided way.

Elaine examined her gravely, then shook her head, her lips trembling. "I don't know anybody here," she said. "You're a policeman, aren't you?"

Komako reached around Mrs. Latham and took one of Elaine's hands in his big one, holding it firmly in his warm reassuring clasp. "Now you listen hard, little girl. Peter died more as a year and a half ago. You got that?"

He paused let it sink in. "And all this time you been care for and love by this kind lady. And the doctor. Not you remember?"

It was too plain that she didn't remember. She was gazing perplexedly up at Komako and Dr. Latham. She took this opportunity to lean over her, very quietly, and put his fingers around her wrist. I watched him, his eyes on his watch as he counted the pulse, and wondered at his superb control.

Elaine turned her head and inspected him. "Are you my doctor?" she asked, and then shifted her bewildered gaze to Komako. "But it can't be a year and a half. I just heard the blowout that sent the car over!" Panic gathered again in the blue eyes.

The doctor's glance flew to her face. A muscle in his lean jaw was twitching. But his voice was even when he said: "You remember the terrible noise? But that was a shot you heard just now, Elaine?"

"I saw why he was excited. She was recalling something that had happened very recently here."

"Elaine..." she repeated, and then: "A shot?.... Oh, yes, they were fighting! Gerald and Gwen! It was terrible..." Then slowly the horror went out of her eyes. They began to glow as she looked steadily into the doctor's strong face.

A slow smile dawned. "Darling!" she said softly and reached up to touch his cheek.

I turned away quickly as his arms went around her. So did Komako. The brilliant sun shined down on us. We didn't even have the presence of mind to move away, and I heard her murmur:

"Darling, I remember everything now! It all flows together. Except the time after the accident—and then a policeman took me to a hospital. Then one day you came.... you came..."

I pulled Komako by the sleeve and we moved off the lanai into the bright hot sunlight. Instinctively we turned away from the groups lingering on the path and walked a few paces down the side of the Rawson house to where a bird of paradise was flaunting its strange exotic bloom. Komako fingered it absently while I filled my pipe.

He began thoughtfully to link things together: "Me, I can see lots now. Elaine been trying so hard to remember for doctor who she is, so they can get married. Must be when Delmar maybe say something about criminal hiding here, she wonder if she might be that, and worry. She find that clipping 'bout Polly Morgan and worry more. Maybe it ring in her head because she is Molly Logan, and names sound same as sort of. She try to see if she look like Polly Morgan. Not can remember. So she run to ask Mrs. Delmar in all that rain."

That all seems to check with her actions," I agreed. "But go on—tell me about the Rawsons' act."

"All morning I try to talk to Elaine, get confession, but doctor and mother keep getting in way. So I got to make plan, do something big to scare Elaine and make her let out what she knows. I was counting on you to watch, for you know before time I make plans like that when is last thing I can do. I need somebody to play-act, so I ask Rawson and Missus. All time he want to do cop work like that Sherlock fellow, so I tell him this is that kind. Show them clipping and they practice hard to act same as Polly and Hawks, Misses, she is happy, saying just like charade. They do nice job, no? Pretty near fool even me!"

"The reenactment of a murder has been done before," I asserted, "by the best of police, and with results. So your instinct was right only Elaine wasn't the murderer, and I guess that's that. It's too late now to put on a skit about every wanted criminal in the notebook."

"Say, you fellows—" That was Budd's voice and he was striding down to us, the point of his beard jutting forward, an angry frown above his sparkling glasses. He went on biting as he came up to us: "Officer, perhaps you'll explain the recent melodrama? What the devil did you expect to prove by simulating a quarrel between the Rawsons? We've gone through about enough here!"

Komako regarded him serenely. "It done pretty fine thing, Mr. Budd. It scare Elaine back to get her memory. She and doctor happy like anything."

"Good Lord! You didn't dare interfere in a delicate situation like that where even a trained psychologist would fear to move! That's hardly the business of a policeman—even if he's trying to pin a murder on somebody other than the plain suspect."

Komako smiled sunnily. "I come out good. Tha's more important as catch murderer. Come, come, Hasty, we got plenty cop business to do."

I hurried along with him to get away from Budd to where I could put the question which had just exploded in my brain. The path was still full of people, and the Hawaiian jurymen were in a huddle down by the hedge, talking gravely, portentously—talking about me. Sam Ota veered away from the Wests and Turvas, and I was afraid he would want to join us. But it was the Rawsons who stopped us. Rawson looked embarrassed, his British reticence to the fore after the show he had helped to put on. Gwen, however was looking pleased and expectant. She asked brightly: "Did it uncover a clue? We went all out for the cause!"

I don't know what Komako said to them, for I walked on, fuming to get him alone. When he caught up with me I steered him to the Latham house, knowing they were still on the Rawsons' lanai, and asked breathlessly:

"Komako, why did you go to such lengths, with the Polly Morgan story? You must have known beforehand that it was out—because you've got the play! Who is the character?"

He looked so downcast, not answering at once, that I went into a panic. "Don't tell me someone got it away from you in the scuffle!" He lifted the flap of his pocket and hauled out the rolled-up manuscript. I seized it thankfully and unrolled it, finding Delmar's ring caught in the bottom of it. I rescued the ring with my curiosity at high pitch, flipped back the blue cover page of the play.

The first page was blank. So were all the others. I looked speechlessly up a Komako.

"I make plan," he explained, "to catch somebody. I am hoping somebody make move when they think I get play. It not had good chance to work yet—but I bet I got some fellow scared." He returned the manuscript to his pocket with an air of satisfaction.

I handed him Delmar's ring. "This is no longer of much consequence. Henry didn't kill Delmar."

"You got him clear?" Komako asked with a slight smile. "Mokino, too?"

"Certainly. Because of the latest development—to which you have paid no attention, though it almost cost me my life." I was still a little sore about that. "No Hawaiian here, I'm positive, could have composed or typed that fake confession."

"I want to know more 'bout that," Komako broke in.

"I should hope you would!" I described in detail all that had happened on the sampan, finishing with: "It was a man's footprints, I'm sure of that. I'll eliminate Dr. Latham now. But there's still Thornton in his wet bathing suit, there's Budd and there's Herb. Not to mention the remote possibility of Rawson. We've a lot of work to do. Komako! We've got to find out who can use a typewriter—though badly. Who had access to poison?"

I stopped as I saw my guard coming into the Latham's lanai. He strode to where we stood in the cool dark living room, full of authority again.

"The jury," he said, "is ready to bring in the verdict. Come."

"Can't it be put off?" I begged Komako.

"Sam Ota got to have everything like law," Komako said. "But not you worry. We are coming close with that fellow getting wild and going to sampan to try to pin murder harder on you. We catch!"

With that much assurance I had to be content, and the three of us went back to the Rawson cottage. The people were gathering in a leisurely manner, the jury still sticking together outside and regaling themselves with bananas.

Sam Ota was asking Mrs. Rawson for bicarbonate of soda, looking more bilious than ever. Komako took advantage of the delay to go over to Henry and Mokino and Mary and start gossiping. Soon they were at it hammer and tongs. I was puzzled to see Komako wasting time on them, no longer suspects in my mind, and then it occurred to me he might find out from them which of the colonists could type.

Washington Round-up

News and Views, Briefly On What's Going On In Capital

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, May 26.—Tax legislation and the soft coal wage dispute—two of the most complex problems on government's doorstep—finally seemed near solution today after weeks of wrangling.

A congressional conference committee agreed on a compromise pay-as-you-go income tax collection system, which members said may win speedy approval of both house and senate so it can go into effect July 1. The legislation cancels a whole year's taxes for those who owe $50 or less and absorbs 75 per cent of a year's taxes for all others, the remainder to be paid over a two-year period.

The war labor board's long-awaited decision in the soft coal wage situation meanwhile appeared to have brought the United Mine Workers and the operators to the bargaining table.

The board rejected the miners' flat demand for a $2 a day increase but recommended that steps be taken to assure a six-day week, agreed to approve a reasonable amount of pay for underground travel-time and raised vacation pay from $20 to $50. Operators were directed to furnish the miners equipment free.

With the accent on unhappy Italy, international affairs again concerned high Washington circles. Prime Minister Churchill, joining in President Roosevelt's press conference, suggested Italians would be well advised to disown Mussolini and Fascism and get out of the war.

World food problems still engaged ranking officials attending the conference at Hot Springs, Va., and there was growing sentiment for the 44 participating nations to set up a commission to meet this summer and work out a detailed plan of increasing food production after the war. The commission would be headquartered in Washington.

History repeated itself in congress on the poll tax issue. The house passed, 265 to 110, the bill outlawing collection of poll taxes as a prerequisite to voting, a system now prevailing in seven southern states. The southern bloc looked hopefully to the senate to kill the measure as it did, by filibuster, last year.

In the senate, also, was heard a friendly voice for the embattled farm security administration, an agency criticized so much in the house that it was ignored when funds were parceled out. Albert S. Goss, master of the national grange, told a sub-committee the agency should not be killed but should be regulated more closely. It has a worthwhile purpose, he insisted.

Mt. Union College Free Of Debt, Proxy Reports

President Charles B. Ketcham of Mount Union college today announced the successful completion of the deficit retirement campaign for $75,000. As a result of this campaign the accumulated deficit of recent years has been completely liquidated, leaving the college free of all debt.

The deficit retirement campaign was launched quietly last summer. L. A. Beesly of Youngstown, one of the trustees of the college, made the initial gift of the campaign in the amount of $25,000, at the same time challenging the group of alumni and friends of the college in Alliance to match his gift, and the general alumni group to do the same. Both groups responded to this challenge.

facturers mushroomed by war production.

The senate also was to consider the house bill providing prison sentences for agents and operators of the "numbers" or "policy" gambling racket.

Pass Defense Bill

The house yesterday passed the senate bill empowering the state defense council to direct and supervise local civilian defense activities. It made numerous amendments which must be returned to the senate for concurrence.

The house disapproved of two other proposals.

One was the bill of Senator P. H. Rogers (R-Lorain), under which the state pardon and parole commission could initiate investigations of prisoners serving life sentences for first degree murder and recommend a pardon or commutation to the governor.

The bill, defeated 63 to 45 (69 votes were needed for passage), originally provided that first degree liars should become eligible for a parole hearing after serving 15 years in prison. It was modified by a house committee.

Also rejected was a house-senate conference committee's recommendation on legislation allowing the state highway director to keep secret his engineer's estimates of project costs. The senate had adopted the committee's recommendation, and proponents indicated they would ask the house to reconsider its position.

The senate added its approval to a house bill permitting counties to consolidate welfare activities. Because of amendments the bill must return to the house for further action.

Other actions:

The house completed enactment of legislation allowing banks to remain open on legal holidays.

The senate passed and sent to the house a bill authorizing establishment of conservancy districts for control of erosion on the shores and islands of Lake Erie.

WATCH HAS LOT OF TIME TO GET AROUND

MEMPHIS—A wrist watch without inscription, lost by a Memphis marine in the sands of Guadalcanal last January, has come home after a circuitous journey of thousands of miles.

The watch, dropped by Pfc. Leo M. Schneider, Jr., as he leaped ashore, was found in February by a marine captain who later turned it over to a Red Cross worker in a San Francisco hospital.

The Red Cross worker, Virginia Benham, traced the watch from the manufacturer through the wholesale distributor and jewelry firm finally to Schneider's parents here.

The watch, still in good shape, is being saved for its marine owner, who has some unfinished business in the Pacific.

WHO SAID A DUCK TAKES TO WATER?

downtown store during the darkness.

Junior Helper and Robert Oana, messengers for the air raid control center, were attacked and beaten by two boys and a girl as they walked toward town on W. Pershing st. before the blackout last night, a police report states.

He'per is believed to have suffered a rupture during the tussle. Elsewhere in the county communities reported their blackouts a success.

Howard Dodge, the Perry township warden chief, reported that only one light violation was discovered in the 17 patrolled districts. The township's 80 wardens patrolled their sectors as well as the highways leading into Salem.

The glow of blast furnaces and the bright lights of numerous war plants in industrial northern Ohio were darkened as the 10 counties blacked out for the 35-minute test period.

Steel Plants Blacked Out

Mahoning valley's huge steel mills were blacked out for the first time, everywhere except in Warren.

War plants in Youngstown, Niles, Struthers, Lowellville, Girard and Campbell were required to black out completely. Greater Cleveland factories were permitted to keep inside lights burning, but a large number voluntarily observed the complete blackout.

Potteries and war industries in East Liverpool were exempted from the test.

Lieut. Col. Donald J. Lynn of the Ohio State Guard, official observer, said only a few plants lacked proper preparations.

Summit county, originally scheduled to participate in the experiment, was excluded by State Defense Director Ralph H. Stone because of a work stoppage at four Akron rubber plants.

above the $50 tax, a special "notch" feature was being worked out today by tax experts. The idea is to keep the man who owed somewhat more than $50 from paying a sizeable tax while the obligation of a man just under that figure would be cancelled.

For military and naval personnel, the bill would exclude $1,500 basic pay over and above the exemptions for other citizens. Accordingly, a member of the armed forces would have a basic exemption of $2,000 if single, $2,700 if married. Also, tax obligations outstanding at the death of a soldier or sailor would be cancelled.

Since the 20 per cent withholding tax is designed to capture only a 3 per cent Victory tax and 17 per cent for the income tax fund, it will not fully settle the obligations of salary and wage earners whose income mounts into the higher surtax brackets. Single persons paid more than $2,700 a year and married persons paid $3,500 or more would have to estimate their total tax and pay quarterly on the amount above withholdings.

They'll Be More Effective In Blasting Hitler Out Of War

much on breaking British morale. He had the idea that if he could lay London in ruins, the people would fold up automatically. So he kept on sending big fleets of bombers over the capital although he was doing very little industrial damage. London is a great rail center and port, but even if he had leveled it, that wouldn't in itself have beaten Britain.

One of the biggest elements in John Bull's favor was the fact he was able to depend on Uncle Sam for supplies. As fast as Hitler destroyed resources with bombs, convoys from America dumped fresh cargoes ashore in Britain.

That produced the German U-boat campaign which, like its predecessor in the World war, crowded the Allies into a corner but didn't succeed in controlling the Atlantic. Despite bombs and U-boats, the Allies have continued to pile up striking-power in the British Isles until we are now able to unleash the hurricane of bombs which we hope will whittle the head gangster down to the size where we can handle him nicely.

There is still another vital difference between the job which we are doing over western Europe and the Nazi bombing of Britain. Far greater explosive power is being unleashed against Hitler, it's being done more systematically and the objectives selected are vital parts of his war machine. The Germans loosed some terribly destructive bombs over Britain but the latest Allied bombs are both block-busters and heart-busters. It is, as Mr. Churchill suggested, an interesting experiment.

SPORT CHATTER

BY HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

NEW YORK, May 26.—These spring days there's nothing quite like going fishin'—even if you can only sit and think about it....

The season is open, everywhere from Pocomoke kingdom in Texas to the Brule in Wisconsin and from the Silligumish in Washington to the Miramichi in New Brunswick (not forgetting the big muddy out at the edge of town)....

All you have to do is pack up your tackle, find room on a train and when you arrive the guide will tell you: "You should be here last week. They were really bitin' then."

...All of which leads up to a letter just received from Sports Editor Wendell Lalime of the Newport (Vt.) Daily Express.... Subject: Fishing.

NEWPORT IN A STORM

Newport, Vermont, is right up in the fishing country on Lake Memphremagog. That's the lake where they made a record catch last week, hauling in 18 landlocked salmon with a total weight of 100 pounds within 90 minutes....

"To begin with," Lalime begins, "sportsmen fish for salmon right in the heart of the community from a railroad bridge adjacent to the local depot.... They can arrive from Boston or New York on a morning train, catch their fish and take a noon train back to wherever they came from. If they wish to stay longer, the city's only hotel is only 100 yards away. No gasoline needed here."

A TALL ONE

"Fishermen here," adds Wendell, "like to tell the yarn about the time the Boston-Montreal train pulled into Newport and during the usual 15-minute stop a spectator in the observation car jumped to the bridge and hurried to the rail, where he managed to borrow someone's rod. Within five minutes he had hooked a salmon, hopped back on the train, had the chef cook it, and was sitting down to a delicious dinner as the train left Newport."

...That's fast fishing, but from here it sounds like a lot faster cooking.

WOULDN'T YOU KNOW IT? "The annual run is dropping off now, and fishermen are leaving the bridge to try their luck in the Clyde river," Lalime concludes.... There it is again—we should have there last week.

MULLINS SUMMER BOWLING LEAGUE TO OPEN JUNE 3

Meeting for Organization of Monday Night Loop Is Called

Organization of the Mullins summer bowling league was announced today by loop officials, who list six teams as ready for action, with six men to a team.

The Mullins league will pry off the lid at 8 p. m. on Thursday, June 3, and will roll each Thursday night thereafter until Sept. 9.

Here are the teams: Cubs—C. Decrow, captain; S. Garlock, T. Woina, D. Robbins, C. Hipple, C. Kridler.

Giants—R. Tubbs, captain; T. Brelli, L. Quinn, F. Morrison, H. Whitcomb, P. Concer.

Indians—G. Culler, captain; J. Hart, C. Sekely, J. Shannon, J. Delfavro, L. Berger.

Cardinals—J. Garlock, captain; J. McFeely, G. Decrow, D. DeRienzo, R. Kerr, M. Leibhart.

Tigers—H. Reese, captain; P. Mercer, R. Harroff, A. Schuster, Cleveland Latin, Lewis of Mansfield and Bayes of Lakewood, all of 26 sec.

Yankees—L. DeCrow, captain; R. Lopenan, E. Fisher, D. Butler, A. Benedict, G. Bauman.

The teams were organized with an eye to averages, running from 882 to 899, indicating plenty of competition throughout the league.

Judy Myers announce plans for a meeting of the Monday night league at the new alleys, E. Pershing and S. Lindy, at 7:30 p. m. Friday. Organization of this circuit was started by Dick Albright before he was called to the army, but more work remains to be done.

It is built, at present, largely out of teams from the old Quaker City loop at Grates, but, Myers points out, it is planned to make a 14-team organization and so additional teams will be needed.

Consequently, if you're thinking of getting up a team, it is quite possible there's a place for you in this loop. You're invited to attend Friday night's meeting.

The feminine bowlers who are organizing a summer league issue a reminder concerning their meeting tonight at the new alleys. This is the organization meeting and it is necessary that everyone interested in the project be there. Otherwise, if sufficient interest isn't shown, there'll be no league.

It is stressed, particularly, that new bowlers, or beginning bowlers, will be welcome.

Fluttering Redbirds Set To Soar At Anytime Now

(By Associated Press)

Today's timely tip is watch out for the St. Louis Cardinals from here on.

The Redbirds have been fluttering along in second or third place in the National league standings most of the spring and they are 2 1/2 games behind the Brooklyn Dodgers at the moment, but every sign indicates they are ready to soar now that they are back in sportsman's park for a long stay.

They already may have taken off. They won two doubleheaders in two days from the New York Giants to close their eastern invasion and in these four games made 52 hits for 26 runs.

The Redbirds don't have to be rated off their series with the Giants alone, however, for they won nine out of 13 games on their eastern swing, split even with the Dodgers in four games, and previously had won eight of 14 against the other western clubs.

Lot of Entertaining Starting with tonight's game with Boston they will be on their home grounds continuously until June 21 and in the interim will meet every other team in the league.

The Dodgers can be counted upon to put up a battle before yielding the lead. They, too, have won four straight and in the first round of international play also captured nine out of 13 games. They have been getting exceptional pitching and timely extra-base hitting.

The American league also is looking forward to fireworks over first place.

It is beginning to be recognized that the New York Yankees no longer can dominate the junior circuit as they have in other years and rival clues are ceasing to act shy and meek in the presence of the monarchs.

The Cleveland Indians took three games from the champions last weekend and moved into first place, but the Tribe may have difficulty holding this edge through a two-week eastern invasion while the Yankees are operating in their own stadium.

After playing at Boston for three days, the Indians will tackle the Yankees in New York Saturday and Sunday and then move on to Washington, where the ambitious Senators are no easy touch.

The Yankees are dated with Detroit for the next three days.

REDS BACK HOME AS FANS MOAN

CINCINNATI, May 26.—The Cincinnati Reds meet the Philadelphia Phillies under the lights tonight at Crosley field following their return from a disastrous eastern swing.

The loud moaning from the brass hat department of the Cincinnati outfit is not caused by the Reds' failure to hit. The Queen City boys are hitting the "balata ball" as well as the best and better than most teams in the National league.

The "big beef" on the part of the Cincinnati masterminds is that their athletes are not hitting when they should.

Bucky Walters, loser of his last two starts, will do the hurling for the Reds tonight while former Red-leg St. Johnson will oppose him.

ST. HELENS, Ore.—Two boards fastened together with a hinge will replace the starter's gun this season at St. Helens high school track meets.

ITALIANS ASKED TO QUIT GERMANS

Informal Invitation Is Extended By Premier Churchill

Tuesday press conference, and the chief executive, interrupting briefly at only a couple of points, let his ruddy, cigar-smoking friend from overseas take over.

Optimistic
Churchill spoke optimistically of the conduct of the war since he last was in Washington a little less than a year ago. But he fell back on generalities in answering an inquiry about plans for the future, particularly in Europe. Those plans, he said, are to wage this war until unconditional surrender is secured from all those who have molested us, and that applies equally to Asia and Europe.

Declaring he was anxious to increase the intensity of the war efforts against Japan and that these must be prosecuted with the greatest vigor, the prime minister said it was with that in mind that he had brought the three top British commanders in India with him to Washington.

Emphasizing the importance of heavy bombings, the prime minister said it was poetic justice that the United Nations should be achieving superiority in airplanes—a weapon on which he said the Germans had counted to subjugate the world.

units and much other war equipment.

Edsel was regarded as one of the leading executives among the world's industrial leaders, although his father's fame overshadowed him.

Edsel was born in Detroit Nov. 6, 1893, at the time his father was completing his first automobile in a brick barn in Detroit's Bagley avenue.

Educated in the public schools and Detroit university school, Edsel Ford began work in the plant of the Ford company in 1912. After five years of factory work he was elected vice-president and in 1919 after the Ford family had bought out all minority stockholders he was made president.

Married In 1916

He was married in 1916 to Eleanor Lowthian Clay, daughter of a Detroit merchant.

Edsel Ford did not always see eye to eye with his father on matters of business policy, but there was a deep-rooted bond of affection between them.

Henry Ford once observed: "Edsel has his own mind and his own ideas. He knows some things better than I do, and I know some things better than he does."

It was Edsel who persuaded his father to abandon the old model T car for one with a conventional gear shift, during the first World war he had charge of the construction of eagle boats, the submarine chasers the company undertook to build on a volume basis; he was responsible also for the company's initial venture into aviation in the late twenties, and also developed the Ford company's Mercury model.

Edsel was a devotee of motorboating, automobile racing, golf and photography and an ardent baseball fan.

A flight of Focke-Wulf 90's, heading toward a southeast town at dusk last night, was ambushed by lurking RAF Spitfires. Four of the enemy planes were sent spinning into the sea and others were believed to have been damaged.

The offensive continued today and shortly after noon a strong force of Allied planes, possibly including bombers, sped across the channel toward Calais to resume the battering of the Axis-held continent.

The communique of the German high command today said the raid caused "losses among the population as well as damage to buildings". Twenty-four British planes were reported destroyed. The communi-
